ST. TERESA TEACHES US MAGAZINE READERS

Father O'Connor, on College Day, Says She Succeeded by Thinking Deeply.

"We are a nation of magazine readers," said Rev. F. J. O'Connor, pastor of Our Lady of Lourdes Church, at the Mass on College Day, the feast of St. Teresa, Oct. 15. "Talk to an ordinary woman about meditation and she smiles at you; yet there is nothing worth while not built on meditation. St. Teresa, whom we commemorate on our alter this morning, combines the mystical and practical sides of the spiritual life. She is a unique position; she stands alone among women as being a doctor of the church. Her meditative life dominated her intellectual forces. We can go back in the sixteenth century to find a remedy for the things that are amiss today. We have in St. Teresa a model and a reminder."

The Freshmen

Freshmen rules have been in force for over a month, and at last we are ready to express our opinion of the freshmen. The crucial time has nearly passed and we now feel that we can say with emphasis and with pleasure that, on the whole, the freshmen have proved themselves.

They have entered with real zest into the spirit of the thing, and have emptied bravely to find humor in situations that seemed far from humorous to them; and have shown that spirit of friendly reciprocation and good fellowship that is so necessary for happy relationships in a school.

In a word, the upperclassmen and sophomores are glad to know that, when they have graduated, they will leave after them a class capable of upholding the real spirit of Fontbonne.

In Memoriam

Fontbonne is almost too young to be able to bewail the passing of old landmarks and traditions. However, there was a favored spot which flourished one short, sweet year, and now is no more—the old locker-room! Although it is now, strictly speaking, more properly a coffee house than before, being the college lunch-room, it is no longer the coffee house of freshman fancy. For the old coffee house became so known because within it walls were discussed as great a variety of subjects as ever Addison, Steele, or Doctor Johnson discussed in the coffee houses of seventeenth-century fame.

It was the rendezvous of the sociable. One was always free to air one's opinions on any subject from how a school should be run to how to make a water wave stay in. A late arrival, while removing her galoshes, could discuss the dance of the night before, with a friend who is desperately searching through her books for a lost assignment. Charmingly informal and altogether delightful was the old locker-room, and although we feel that perhaps we will do more studying without it, we are among those who mourn.

Plated or Sterling?

It isn't the girl who makes the greatest display of pennants, or shouts the loudest at a game, or cries the hardest on graduation day, that shows the greatest amount of school spirit, but she who willingly takes her share of the responsibilities and duties, as well as of the pleasures, of college life.

As we see it, there is one such responsibility, and a very grave one, facing students now. Those who are to be in the "Maids on the Bamboo Screen" have been warned that, unless they give themselves more earnestly and generously to practice, the operetta will not be given. And what is more serious, the orderly may dissolve as a consequence.

However, The Font has too much confidence in the spirit of Fontbonnians to believe that they will allow anything so unfortunate to occur. It believes that, once the seriousness of the situation is realized, all members of the cast will only come to every rehearsal; but—and we are told this is equally important—will come on time.

SISTER JOSEPH MARIE DIES IN COLORADO

Death came Saturday, October 29, to Sister Joseph Marie, assistant-provincial of the St. Louis province of the Sisters of St. Joseph, after a short illness that seized her on her arrival in Denver, Colo., a week previously. Sister Bartholomew, assistant-provincial of Fontbonne, left St. Louis to attend the funeral.

Sister Joseph Marie had been an interested friend of Fontbonne since its opening; her last visit was for the Mass of the Holy Ghost September 28.
"HOCKEY GAINING FAVOR IN U. S.—MISS HANSS"

"Hockey has gained such notice in the United States that coaches have been brought from England to assist in advancing this sport in its proper form," said Miss Marie I. Hanss, athletic director of St. John's College, to a Font reporter last week.

"A United States tournament will be held in St. Louis this fall," she continued, "with the St. Louis representation chosen by coaches from England. This sport is in its infancy here at Fontbonne, but we hope to develop a splendid team before another season. The classes have been so arranged that the freshmen, sophomores, and juniors have been combined to enter classes of mixed groups."

The first practice game was held Thursday, Oct. 27, between the Greeks, a freshman group, and the Purples, comprising juniors and sophomores, the score being 4–3 in favor of the Greeks.

TO PLEASE SWIMMERS

Two swimming opportunities are announced by the department of physical training. A class in Red Cross life saving will be conducted on Wednesdays at 3 p.m., and recreational swimming will be held on Tuesdays at 3 p.m.

WHAT IT'S ALL ABOUT

"Etiquette is the essence of good breeding," says one of our dashing freshmen when commanded to appear before the Freshmen Tribunal to answer for what the upperclassmen considered a bit of unseemly conduct. The tribunal, composed of eight seniors and juniors, meets whenever necessary requires and pass judgment with as much decorum as any court where justice is tempered with mercy.

The existence of such a board was simply unbelievable until—well, anyway, it didn't prove half such a joke as was anticipated and now it's simply a "sin and shame" to be punished in such a dignified way. Evidently our little freshmen aren't used to appearing before a gray or if that is the difficulty? It's rather hard to say, but at all costs they must reach college level and the tribunal is just here to aid them.

MASS MEETING FOR PEACE

Lombus from Pittsburg, will be the principal speaker of the evening, Rev. C. P. Maxwell of St. John's Church, is associate chairman of the local committee, and Helen Purcell is Fontbonne's representative on the staff of cooperating groups.

The assembly will be held in connection with the twelfth annual convention of the World Alliance at Hotel Chase, Nov. 6 to 11.

MISSION ESSAY CONTEST

SPONSORED BY C. S. M. C.

An essay contest is the central enterprise being carried on by the C. S. M. C. at Fontbonne this fall. Valuable prizes are promised for this competition which is open to all high-school and college students of the city.

"The Present Status of Catholic Missions" is the subject assigned to college women.

Plans for this contest were first made at a meeting on Oct. 21, at St. Louis University Auditorium, at which Dolores Boodeeker, of the Freshman class, was Fontbonne's representative. Arrangements were also made for the honor programs which one unit will give each week over WEF, the radio station of St. Louis University. Announcement was also made of the book on medical missionary work published by the American Medical Mission Society. A final question decided at the meeting was that small plays will be presented throughout the year to take the place of the annual pageant. St. Louis University and McBride high school will unite in giving the first play in November.

The officers in charge of the work of Fontbonne unit since the first meeting of the year on October 14 are: President, Alice Igoe; vice-president, Edna Perry; secretary, Virginia Gates; treasurer, Dolores Boodeeker.

MONSIGNOR SEVENS RITES CRUSADERS

"The most winning missionary tale we ever heard!" was the enthusiastic comment of the members of the audience which heard the experiences of Right Rev. Msgr. Renier Sevens, of Oklahoma City, vicar-general for missions in Oklahoma, given in the auditorium Wednesday afternoon, October 19. His vivid descriptions of his missions to non-Catholics, Indians and negroes constituted a memorable chapter of mission education for Fontbonne crusaders.

STORM SUFFERERS AIDED

Grace and Vita Viviano, members of the sophomore class, were among the twenty-two young women of the city who sponsored a card party at Hotel Chase Saturday afternoon, Oct. 22, for the benefit of the sufferers from the recent tornado. Many Fontbonne students were in attendance. The proceeds amounting to more than $500 were sent to the Red Cross.

HALLOWEEN REVELS

Ghosts walked and bainesses wailed, in true Halloween fashion, Monday, Oct. 31, when the seniors of St. Teresa's entertained the Fontbonne alumnae and their escorts at a Halloween hay ride to Meramec Quarry, St. Louis County. Mr. and Mrs. Urban S. Mudil chartered the party.

ST. TERESE TEACHES US

"Trinity," Father continued. "She went down deep, went to the root of things, therefore she did great things for the world. She was a dreamer, but she did not stop at dreams."

"Learn at least this much from the consideration of St. Teresa, before we decide if the Bible is true. We must examine the Bible and then decide if it is true."

Immediately after luncheon, the annual parade took the students to Nazareth Convent, near Jefferson Barracks, one of the many local institutions of the Sisters of St. Joseph.

The organization known as the Handmaids of the Blessed Sacrament, which was formed in the academy last year, expects to resume its work immediately. It is conducted on the plan developed by Father D. A. Lord, S.J., making it closely associated with the Sodality. Members pledge themselves to receive Holy Communions at least once a week, and to do all in their power to promote devotion to the Blessed Sacrament.

A program was held at the regular meeting of the C. S. S. M. C. unit which was held in the auditorium, Friday, Oct. 28. It was opened with prayer for the missions. Marie Givin gave a report on behalf of several academy students who had attended the Spiritual Leadership School at St. Louis University, conducted by Rev. Daniel A. Lord, S.J.

Dorothy Hogan spoke on the work of the Spiritual Council. Eleanor McGinn reported on her work on the October meeting of the St. Louis Conference of the C. S. S. M. C. The last speaker was Eleanor Riley, who discussed the C. S. S. M. C. paper, the Shield.

SODALITY UNION FORMED

The School of Spiritual Leadership held here.

If the plans of the new Sodality Union carry, a pilgrimage will be made early in the spring to some point of religious interest near St. Louis. A national convention of the Sodality may also be held here in the spring.
