Living Catholic Authors Subject For Discussions During Book Week

Students To Read Papers In Library On Shepard, Seen, And Dudley.

Book Week, November 11 to 15, will be celebrated at Fontbonne with the usual "Living Catholic Authors" program for at 12:30 p.m. in the library of the library. This year marks the annual anniversary of the Library Reading Week. It is sponsored by the Library Association and the Student Library Association.

The program is actually being used as an advertising medium for new books. Librarians introduce books that will appeal to the readers who are interested in reacquiring a selection of the newer books of contemporary authors and others. Each year since the first Book Week, it has been more widely observed and has found a permanent place in the library calendar.

The students are to be the lecturers, giving a short biographical sketch, and a summary of the work of each paper. Monday, Eleanor Miller, Turn will discuss "The Life and Death of St. Benet," and she will be introduced by the author of "The Life of St. Benet," and the author of "The Life of St. Benet." Tuesday, John Jones and Christopher Pyle will read the works of "Life and Death of St. Benet." Tuesday, Henry Miller and Gilbert H. Miller will read the works of "The Life of St. Benet."

L. Munch, head of the Department of English and Literature, will present the lectures.

INTEREST IN THE SYMPHONY
In his talk on the Cincinnati Symphony at College Day, the Reverend Joseph A. McEnally lamented the fact that the trend in education today is toward the practical side with the result that the emotional influences of music and art are neglected. This is one of the dangerous trends in our country. In an attempt to reverse this trend, the Fontbonne Symphony Orchestra was founded last year.

Fontbonne, however, puts a lot of money into the orchestra. The orchestra students are given the best facilities. The orchestra is also popular. The orchestra is expected to attract the attention of the student body. The orchestra is also expected to attract the attention of the student body.
