what does college day mean to you?

In this turbulent year of 1948, there is no better occasion than a College Day to celebrate today in honor of the founders of our college, to remind us of the pride of being Americans. All over the world, Europe the youth of our age are fighting for freedom to take up the lost traditions again and become a part of the spirit of freedom. We, as students, must keep alive in our hearts the precious right of freedom for greatness. We do not have to meet in dark cellars or secret hideaways to carry on our fight. This College Day may mean a holiday to you, but the spirit of which it is symbolic is the spirit of all college students the world over. It is rooted in the hearts of all college students everywhere.

all out for victory!

The month of October has come and the agogs as being synonymous with the name of Mary, especially for the church. This month does the Angel on our lips as Queen of the Holy Rosary.

Our boys, who are coming up from the ocean fields, who are steering those ships, and those planes are constantly testing their skill through their training, for they know that true and lasting peace can be found only through the King of Peace, Jesus Christ. If your boys are far away, write to them and let them know the spirit of their hearts, which is the spirit of God who has wished that we should have all things through Mary.

reafirmation of editorial principles

The first issue of the new editorial policy, effective with this issue. Members of the staff are reminded of the need of working in the following principles:

What's New?

Among the many new appointments to our faculty, there is one book that stands out above all others. That is the story of a sixteenth-century nun, written by Father Brown. This book is a true masterpiece of penmanship and style, and it is sure to be a favorite among our students. The story revolves around the life of a nun named Sister Elizabeth, who was forced to make difficult choices in order to survive in a time of great hardship. Through her experiences, she learns valuable lessons about faith, love, and sacrifice.

Assembly of Stress Post-War Conditions

Sister Joseph Breslin explained the need for the humanities course in the isolation of the war years. She stated that the humanities were needed in order to help students reflect on their lives and to gain a deeper understanding of the human condition. Sister Breslin emphasized the importance of the humanities in fostering critical thinking and promoting a love of learning. She also discussed the role of the humanities in preparing students for careers in fields such as law, medicine, and business.

Soldiers and Sailors Reveal Hopes and Plans in V-Mail

What does he think about us? Are there any documents or records that show his thoughts about us? As he reads for a bedside or perhaps a picnic near the beach, he may think of his family, his friends, and his future. What will he do when the war is over?

The lesson to be learned in this war is that we must be prepared for war and victory. We must be united in our goal of peace and understanding. We must remember that we are all brothers, and that we must work together to achieve our common goal.

Catholic Action Spreads Through Missions

With prayers for peace and for the protection of our families, the first meeting of the CECM (Catholic Educational Mission) took place on the third Sunday of the month. The theme of the meeting was "The Path to Peace." The theme was chosen to reflect the needs of the time and to encourage a sense of unity and purpose among the members.

The meeting was well attended, with a record turnout of members. It was a very successful meeting, and it set the tone for the rest of the year.
