From Hall to Hall
After doing some fighting around for most of the day, your regular "hallie" (who has not been able to return on time, has been playing basketball) managed to be seen from the members of the faculty on the field. It was quite an event.

Santa Alberta de la Salle and Sister Mary Luise of the Muñoz Missionary Sisters at Brown University School, November 27.

Several Catholic homes from the Catholic high schools and parochial schools.

These girls from the homes are really the best kind of sister. Sister Mary Luise of the Muñoz Missionary Sisters was present at the Christmas dinner for our students. She was present on behalf of the Muñoz Missionary Sisters.

Looking over the big picture of the Christmas dinner, I discovered that the program was successful in raising the necessary funds for the Tuition Fund. The students donated generously and the idea of giving something to help others was very much appreciated.

Do You Want The Font or Not?

The purpose of a college publication is obvious - to let the students and faculty know what is happening on campus, who is doing what, and how it all works. So the news should be as complete as possible. It should be written in a way that will enable the reader to understand it. Therefore, it is necessary for the editor of such a publication to set a definite deadline for the receipt of all copy.

But a deadline does not mean a thing; it remains a mere form, unless those working on the staff respect that date and get their copy in by that date. If the staff members fail to do this, there remain two alternatives - the editor and associates may take it for granted that they do not have to do anything about it. Either they do not produce a paper or they produce a paper that is not up to par. Sometimes both happen on rare occasions.

When this happens, the purpose of the student publication has failed because a student paper is for the students and it should be read by the students who are interested in the activities on campus and the happenings in the world of letters of work.

Dear Daily Fontbonne,

How many times have you heard the importance of directorial democracy from business, and how many hours have you ever spent discussing it? It is a concept for a functional living for all students. Yes, even in the business world a certain type of democracy is a good thing.

We were never able to get on the same page, despite the efforts of those who tried to understand each other. The problem was that we were too busy to communicate. It is a pity that many of us do not have the time to discuss these matters.

We don't need anyone in particular, we are all students, and we should be able to communicate, unambiguously and without the need for a mediator. This is one of the reasons why we should continue to improve our communication skills. We should try to understand each other and respect each other's opinions.

What Can We Do About the Racial Problem?

The Task Falls to Catholic Writers!

Non-Catholic writers have taken up the Negro cause in the present day for rights as citizens of the United States. Before the days of hatred and prejudice set out on the path, haven't all signs and real values of the racial problem. Articles appearing in current periodicals contain attacks and editorials and minor incidents of Negro-White race of the positive or negative nature which endures in the country today.

In editing periodicals with such vivid descriptions and full-page articles, these writers cannot help but strike the Negro's soul in the same manner, and on an honest effort to tell their story. It is this type of propaganda which must be done. It must be put in the hands of the Negro, who is the master of the Negro race, and must be done in such a way that will show the people what the Negro is worth.

In the August 10 issue of the New York Times, there is an article about the Negro in the United States. It is an excellent article which gives a clear account of the Negro's situation.

In 1947, the United States had an estimated Negro population of 11 million. However, there were only 1 million Negroes who were eligible to vote. This percentage is very low because of the lack of education and the discrimination against Negroes.

In recent years, there has been an increase in the Negro population due to migration from the South to the North. This migration has led to an increase in the Negro population in the cities.

In conclusion, it is important to remember that the Negro is an important part of our society and his rights must be respected. It is the duty of everyone, especially Catholic writers, to help in this cause.

Do You Know the Story Behind Mother St. John Fontbonne’s Courage?

by Beatrice Burke

When the Good Friday Eve was made with the greatest hurry of the Revolution, the spirit of the people trembled with the tempest of the storm. As life and beauty in the nation were destroyed, the Church of St. John Fontbonne was occupied by the people of the city. It was filled to overflowing.

There was more than one religious whose heart was full, and more than one whose hope was not lost.

Mother St. John Fontbonne, the young mother of the nation, was constant in her devotion. She was constant in her devotion. She was constant in her devotion. She was constant in her devotion. She was constant in her devotion.

The school was in session in the city, and the people were flocking in.
