Y’ll You Droll Too?

If You Could Taste ‘Em

BY JIM SCHWARTZ

Pee-wee’s Big Adventure was the latest of a long line of successful movies that have followed the footsteps of the original Pee-wee Herman series. The film, directed by Stephen Herek, has been well received by critics and audiences alike, with many praise the film’s cast and crew for bringing Pee-wee’s unique brand of humor to the big screen.

The story follows Pee-wee Herman (played by Paul Reubens) as he sets out on a cross-country adventure to buy a new bicycle. Along the way, he meets a variety of colorful characters, including a retired astronaut, a group of circus performers, and a group of treasure hunters.

The film’s soundtrack features a number of popular songs, including “I Can’t Stand Myself When I Like That Man” by Queen and “Dancing in the Street” by Bruce Springsteen and the E Street Band.

In addition to its comedic value, the movie also highlights some important social messages, such as the importance of following your dreams and the power of friendship.

Overall, Pee-wee’s Big Adventure is a fun and entertaining film that should be enjoyed by audiences of all ages. Whether you’re a fan of the original show or a newcomer to Pee-wee’s world, this film is sure to bring a smile to your face.

Who’s On First Base In The Art Field

By NORMAN SHELTON

There is the most current news in the art world. Many artists are making plans, some are already in the process of planning, and others are looking for new and exciting projects. One of the most exciting artists currently working is Mr. Martin Seger, who has recently been appointed as the new director of the Fontbonne College Art Department. Mr. Seger is a well-known figure in the art world and his appointment is sure to bring renewed interest in the college's art programs.

The art department at Fontbonne College has a long history of producing talented artists, and Mr. Seger is expected to continue this tradition. He has a strong background in both traditional and contemporary art, and his appointment is likely to bring new ideas and approaches to the college's art programs.

Mr. Seger's appointment is also significant because it comes at a time when the art world is facing many challenges. The pandemic has forced many artists to adapt their work and find new ways to reach their audiences. Mr. Seger's expertise in online art exhibitions and virtual workshops is likely to be an asset in this time of change.

The art department at Fontbonne College is also working to expand its programs and reach new audiences. Mr. Seger's appointment is a significant step in this direction. He is enthusiastic about the possibilities of the college's art programs and is looking forward to working with students to help them develop their talents and achieve their goals.

Overall, Mr. Seger's appointment is a positive development for the art department at Fontbonne College. His experience and expertise are likely to bring new energy and creativity to the college's art programs, and his appointment is sure to be welcomed by students and faculty alike.

Mysterious ‘Germ’ Plagues Entire Fontbonne Campus

By ROBERT GIBBONS

The germ is on the loose at Fontbonne College and appears to be spreading fast and furious across the campus. Students, faculty, and staff have been reporting symptoms of the germ, such as fatigue, headache, and a general feeling of malaise. The germ is believed to have originated from an unknown source, possibly a student who was not tested for the germ.

The Fontbonne College administration has taken steps to contain the spread of the germ. They have increased the number of cleaning and sanitizing stations around the campus, and have also recommended that students wear masks and maintain social distancing.

However, some students and faculty members are concerned about the lack of testing for the germ. They believe that more testing is needed to determine the exact source of the germ and to ensure that everyone who has been exposed is tested.

The college administration has acknowledged these concerns and has promised to increase testing in the coming weeks. They have also urged students and faculty members to continue to follow safety protocols and to report any symptoms of the germ to the college's health services.

Overall, the germ appears to be a serious threat to the Fontbonne College community. The college administration is working to contain the spread of the germ and to protect the health and well-being of its students, faculty, and staff.

Adolph, Of Town Hall, Really Travels Around The World And From Job To Job

BY MARY PUGLISI

Adolph, Of Town Hall, really travels around the world and from job to job. He has been to many places and has seen many things. He is a very interesting person and always has a new story to tell.

The Depression forced him to leave his job as Town Hall hopper. During this time he moved around a lot and ended up in a job as a janitor. In fact, he was one of the first people in St. Louis to make ends meet by doing odd jobs.

He told the story of how he had to get the kids into college.

"If I don't know how to do it," Adolph protested when a friend suggested he start his own business.

"Get a job in New York and run an accounting service," his friend advised. "Then you can do it yourself and be your own boss."

Adolph admitted he didn't have the money to start such a business, but he was determined to find a way.

"How do I find the money?" Adolph asked.

His friend suggested he should look into government grants and loans for startup businesses.

Adolph decided to do so and was eventually awarded a grant from the government.

He used the money to start his own accounting firm and was soon successful.

Adolph's story is an inspiration to others who are struggling to make ends meet in a difficult economy.

He always says, "If you work hard and never give up, you can achieve your goals."

Nerves Of Steel Make Patty Berg A Champion

By JUNE WILKINSON

"What a shot! Patty Berg, who has just made a long putt in the cup. What a shot!" was the general exclamation at the Women's Western Open Tournament. Patty Berg has a special advantage in that she has been playing with her nerves for some years. She has played in almost every major tournament and has been known to hit a good shot even under pressure.

Patty Berg is in her eleventh year of playing golf and has been playing with nerves since she was a child. She started playing in her father's tournament when she was only six years old. Since then, she has been playing in almost every major tournament and has been known to hit a good shot even under pressure.

Elementary?

We are sad. It’s the end of the school year and time to say goodbye. Many of us have spent the past few years as good friends and good friends for a long time. Another year has gone, things will never be the same.

We Must Help

It’s a million miles away and no one cares. And it’s a surprise, a second to the thought, the breathed man. We must break the cliche images of our lives. Life comes and goes, no and all you can do is pray.

A New Policy

Beginning in September, a new policy will be adopted. This year and in other school years, the Font has been an extra-curricular activity, pursued by students whose interest is the work volunteered, not by the school or district. In the classroom, and in the laboratory, inclusion will be given to the student’s demonstration of interest and ability. The school will be expected to follow the new arrangements, members of the Font staff will express a type of "do-the-job" training that will benefit them and the school.

Staff members will receive instruction in the month of October, supervision, and other phases of newspaper work. This paper will be planned and published in a manner similar to that of the Student's newsletter. It is expected that under the new arrangement, members of the Font staff will express a type of "do-the-job" training that will benefit them and the school.

The present edition, being a position to show the possibilities of the new policy, is being planned, and as we sign this it is taken, the best wishes to our students.

You might call this a hallmark picture of a marriage. We've been told that a marriage is an adventure, and that is true. We've had our ups and downs, but we're still together.

For a year we've been talking to our friends, and we've been writing letters, and we've been spending time together. We're still together.

It's a good time to be married. People say that marriage is a difficult time, but we've been having a good time. We've been having a lot of fun, and we're still together.

We like to write letters, and we like to have adventures. We like to be together, and we like to be happy.

So much for writing. Writing a letter on a beautiful piece of paper on a beautiful table.

Write to me, and tell me what's going on in your life. Write to me, and tell me what you're doing. Write to me, and tell me about your day. Write to me, and tell me about your life.

There is one other key to successful writing. You must write regularly. When you write regularly, you can express yourself more fully. When you write regularly, you can express yourself more fully.

Let's get back to the subject of writing. Let's get back to the subject of marriage. Let's get back to the subject of life.

I love you, and I'm looking forward to our next adventure.
