Mother Mary Marcella becomes President

Mother Marcella was ordained a sister of Fontbonne when she turned 19 and has served as president of the college since 1981. She has been a great leader in the Catholic Church and an advocate for education. Her work has been recognized by many organizations, including the Order of Malta, and she has been honored for her contributions to education and religious life.

Pope recalls his own visit to Fontbonne

Pope Francis recalled his visit to the University of St. Louis in 1981, when he was a student at the pontifical North American College in Rome. During his visit, the pope said that he was impressed by the university's commitment to education and its role in promoting peace and justice.

Resident use Medallion Hall

Medallion Hall, the new dormitory for students, is open to all students at the university. The hall was designed to provide a comfortable and secure environment for students.

Father Goyeat Speaker at College Day Mass

The Rev. Michael Goyeat, S.J., a Jesuit priest, delivered the College Day Mass at St. Louis University on November 12. His speech focused on the importance of education and the role of the university in shaping the future of society.

Frosh Class Officers

The newly-elected frosh class officers were announced at the beginning of the year. The officers include president, vice-president, and treasurer. They are responsible for organizing events and activities for the frosh class.
Now We Are Two

For years, Fontbonne students have waited: "Why can't we have a school paper that appears more often than once a month?" The Font reporters anticipated this, and the paper appeared weekly. But this year, the students who have worked on the newspapers have changed their attitude. The Font is now a weekly publication.

The Font"s new format has been met with mixed reactions. Some students have been thrilled with the change, while others have been less enthusiastic. But overall, the response has been positive. The Font is now a more reliable source of news and information for the Fontbonne community.

Do Unto Others

In this day of speaking for self, we are very happy to see the student body and their leaders taking the initiative to do for others. Their inauguration of the "Do Unto Others" is a wonderful example of what Fontbonne students are capable of doing. It is a great example for others to follow.

No news to me!

What was the first action Congress took in the direction of influenza control? And when will the students present this question and their findings? Will the President be present for the inauguration of the new campus? These are only a few of the questions the students are asking.

Trends in fashion are as varied as the students themselves. Some students are still wearing the same clothes they wore last year, while others are already ahead of the fashion curve. The students are eager to show off their individuality and style.

Alumnae News

During Orientation Week two alumnae, Susan McKeen '40, and Virginia Abdul '47, were guests at an open house, discussing their senior fellowships, philosophy, and life.

Several of last year's graduates are back in class again, but this time they are teachers, not students. Margaret Mary Cullinan, a film professor at the University of Notre Dame, and Margaret Mary McManus, a physics professor at the University of Arizona, were guest lecturers at Orientation Week.

The Class of 1947 held a reunion at City Hall on the evening of the 1947 Homecoming and Clearing Methodist Church at Fontbonne on Saturdays. Lesbian History Professor Alice F. W. and Blanche Beale Wolfe at the University of Iowa for work on their master's degrees.

The reunion was a chance for our members to meet and renew old friendships, and for new members to be introduced to the community. The event was a great success, and we look forward to many more reunions in the future.
