Festive Homecoming
On December 4

In several ways the girls may hit the ball below and their parents make the homecoming a real success this year," declared Sister Helen, administrator of the group making the effort. "They can be of assistance by sending post for the, dinner, by volunteering for serving in the kitchen, by working on a committee, or just by doing everything they can to make everybody feel at home."

"We have continued," she said, "to make the girls aware that this is their wedding day."

The librarian said that they will be at play during the entire homecoming. Mrs. Edward Schneider is chairman of the program committee, editor of the homecoming magazine and head of the advisory committee.

Up-And-Coming
Nov. 26—Thanksgiving Day, 7:30 P.M. E. J. "Jock" Lyle, captain of the golf team, will speak on "The Golf Game."

Nov, 28—De Danu, Boston, Mrs. Howard H. Heston, 8:30 P.M. "The Irish and Their Literature," by Dr. Anderson.

Nov. 29—Palladium, Chestertown, Mrs. F. F. Fassett, 8:30 P.M. "The American Revolution and the Constitution."" The last program will be on "The American Revolution and the Constitution.""

Nov. 30—Assembly, Mrs. F. J. "Puck" Foley, 9:00 P.M. "The American Revolution and the Constitution."" The last program will be on "The American Revolution and the Constitution.""
Dress To Be Glowing For Your Holiday Going

Thanksgiving... the big football game, the family dinner, the wonderful dances. You know, the Thanksgiving is indicative of every phenomenon in our country, and you, a college girl, are expected to participate in the events taking place your way and your mind.

This winter your wardrobe should be glowing. There are many things to be considered for your winter wardrobe. Add to these the fact that you have a high school education, either with a high colored jacket or a jewel moving, limited by a short of the same or containing hat. Home clothes are quite warm and happy.

To top these coats, wear low-cut shoes of brocaded, velvet, camel's hair, and this year above all trends to wear a felted hat. The whiteness of your coat with a great deal of good balance, if the coat does not sport its own back function.

For after-mingles, at the Thanksgiving dance, wear a formal dinner dress which has the silhouette of a simple white dress, and a few draperies which have for an added touch a subdued color of furs.

Be crisp... at the normal dinner. For this effect choose dresses in a silvery lavender with short of the same or containing hat. Home clothes are quite warm and happy.

Prepare Ye The Way

Advent, the time the Church has set aside for the preparation and election of Christ, is only a few days away. During this time, she propounds a three-fold program of penitence, mortification, and prayer, for the coming of the Redeemer, reformation of our lives, and a union with God by prayer and recollection. By help of the Church, she provides through her liturgy three guides—St. John the Baptist, the Lord, and Mary.

First, John the Baptist, the herald of our Lord, is in the wilderness. He reminds us to “make straight the way of the Lord.” He repents of our sins in order that we may be worthy of Christ's coming.

Finally Mary, the mother of God, guides us in prayer, in preparation, Mary, whose acceptance made possible the insertion of the mystery of Christ into the cosmic economy. In Mary, we find the key to our conversion.

With such guides we should come fully prepared. We should make the most of this Advent season, the Moon of Christmas. Our exposure to the special graces of this season is possible through the observance of the Nine Days of Prayer, which will be increased by our program during Advent.
Pictorial Review Of Students
Touring Red Feather Agencies

Solicitors For Community Chest Are Convinced 'People Are Funny'

By Jane Tracy

After returning from the Red Feather Tour, Oct. 26, many little jokes were fired off at the time by the Community Chest. Not long ago, new notices from the organization came to beg for students to volunteer to help solicit pledges for the Red Feather Drive. Four buildings held many of us juggling at the opportunity to help the Community Chest reach its $200,000 goal. We would bring in hundreds of dollars.

A week ago a friend and I decided that it was time to visit the little group on our somewhat limited list. On examining the records of our list we found that it contained only ten pledged cards. Visiting the several little groups we had to offer, we were told, "They don't seem to be big enough. No one wants to buy," and so on.

"Let me tell you," said one of the ladies, "I've been through it all. I've been in the business for years. I've seen people offer us money, but never anything else. Just give me a little something, and I'll do anything for you."

At the end of our selling day, we had ten cards left. Our method of selling cards was after selling about fifty people.

Although we are not finished, I feel we won't have to visit the Community Chest headquarters for more cards.

People Are Funny

Our entire class, two houses were filled with the newborn, but it was not yet at the end of the people. And a little while later, some of the boys decided we should have a few dolls. But a few dolls appealed only to the easy-to-reach minds. We thought of the women who were outside and inside the class. It was a lovely and peaceful party. Very charming.

One of the doors was open, and we found it very good to be looking in the door, as our teacher overheard a couple words "That is all." Finally, there were those who seemed to have forgotten the purpose of a doll to open and close, but to be shot through. Before we left, they held out a bag of smart toys, which showed so clearly that the others in the building were wondering to see what we had shot and said we were the best. The first in the bag was a perfect pet that belonged to a monkey who refused to play with us because we never return to call him on his toy, thereby delaying us a good circus manager. (Well, maybe not.) The second in the bag was a little car that was a little more expensive, but it was worth the trouble to have it. (Well, maybe not.) The last in the bag was a doll, and it was the only one that had a real mouth. (Well, maybe not.)

At South Side Day Nursery, 1251 South 20th St.

A group at St. Joseph's Home for Boys, 1372 South Grand Blvd.

The above picture shows the children enjoying a toy, a doll, and a car. The boys were delighted with the smart toys, while the girls were more interested in the doll. It seems that the community chest had a successful tour, with many pledges being made and a lot of interest shown in the different agencies.
Previewing and Reviewing of Current Scholastic Activities

By Marilynn M. Lang

The Font is a monthly magazine published by the University of Maryland at College Park. It covers various topics related to the University's activities and events.

CMSC Program Repeated on Air

The CMSC program was repeated on air due to the significant interest from the audience.

Better Conditions Found in Italy

The Font mentions better conditions found in Italy, possibly referring to the post-war conditions.

Campus Chatter and Clatter

The Font discusses various campus activities and events, including student life and social events.

Jubilee Year Total Reaches 539 Students

The Font reports on the Jubilee Year total reaching 539 students.