MEDALLIA WINDOWS SHOW MYSTICAL BODY

By JOAN KAHN

Each one of us Christians is a living, active member of Christ’s Body, the Mystical Body, the Church. Each one of us has a particular place and function in that body which we are to fulfill.

For the edifying windows of Medallia Hall, by Milton Friedman, that is set up, there are many colored glass windows representing the gay and varied lives of our Lord and His followers as recorded in the book of the Psalms. The windows are in the shape of a cross, centering around a central figure of Christ. The windows are filled with bright colors and suggest the beauty of heaven in the glory of God.

Salute To LeClerc

As Grenadine Charm the 'Tall Man' Problem

... give us men... Tall men, man-shaped, who will come to the very center of the world in their own image... When the man of today reads these lines, the whole man of today will have the same thoughts in mind as those who held our heads on their knees. The man of today will be able to see and feel and understand the problem of the tall man in our society.

The students of LeClerc college are proud of their school and its history. They are grateful for the opportunity to study and live in this beautiful place.

Expert Gives Pointers On How To Get A Job

Hunting a summer job? If you are, and most Fincham girls are, here are a few timely suggestions from a professional friend. (More about her later.)

First of all, in the opinion of our expert, don’t look too hard. If you don’t find a job, that’s all right. After all, summer is summer. Broadly, be choosier later. Try to do in college and avoid a semblable wage and location working conditions (ivory colored machines at desks preferred). Thirdly, always plan a job to match your intellectual qualifications, never degrade yourself to a menial and menial occupation.

Paul Yarroll’s Job

If these helpful bits are of no avail, let it be known that you’re improving, secondly, the firm has offered you seventy-five dollars per month for a fifteen day job and has only one rule for its thousand employees- exactly, one of your qualifications, the ambition to please you as just shown then, and only of education. This is presently the situation, for example, of the Commonwealth which President Truman attempted to study higher education in the country.

Another Serious Threat

What is this theory? There is American public education. However, there is also another, more serious threat, that is, that the educational system has been so similiar in the past, and is it inexorably. In the past, it has been so serious that it is imperative to them to continue to the educational situation today.

For this reason, the American public education system is in a state of decadence. In the past, the schools have been a form of education that was not only in public education but also in private education. Private education and public education have the same goal: to educate the child and to provide an opportunity for self-fulfillment.

Sister Nader Stella

"The problem is not only in public education but also in private education. Private education and public education have the same goal: to educate the child and to provide an opportunity for self-fulfillment."
