Thirty-Fifth College Day
Tomorrow. A. Marino and P. McManamee are Co-Chairmen

Fonthill's annual College Day will be held tomorrow, Tuesday, October 12th. This day is the Feast of St. Teresa, a patroness of Fonthill. It is the day that the freshmen are invested in cap and gown, signifying that they are now officially students of Fonthill. Among the highlights of the day will be the decoration and judging of decorated cars. The theme of the parade to Carondelet will be "Around the World in Eighty Days." Also highlighting the day will be the program presented by the junior and senior hostesses, who are Fonthillians.

Co-Chairmen for the Thirty-Fifth College Day are Patricia McManamee and Angeline Marino. On the committee are Ann Beene, Ann Maber, and Judith Lens.

Classes Elect Candidates
For Homecoming Dance, Nov. 8

Candidates for the Homecoming Queen are Patricia Beene, Joan Boyd Young, and Nancy Planjian, seniors; as well as the junior queen, who will be chosen by the votes of those attending the Homecoming Dance, Friday, November 5th, in the Foundling hall, from 8 to 11 p.m. The coronation will take place at 9:30. Carl Roper's orchestra has been engaged.

Patricia Beene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John A. Beene, has been a student at St. Alphonsus high school and is majoring in education.

Joan Boyd Young, a graduate of St. Francis College, is in English major and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Young.

Nancy Planjian is the daughter of James Planjian of Peoria, Ill., an English major and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Planjian, and a major in education.

The court of the queen will be composed of representatives from each class. The junior maid of honor is Joan Russell, sophomore, and Mary Edna Cooper. The freshman candidate is Thelma Powers.

More Changes Among Faculty

The new president of Fonthill, Sister Marguerite Shelley, formerly of the department of biology, was appointed June 18, 1957. She replaced Sister Susanne Marie Vachon, who died June 20 after a long illness of cancer.

Sister Susanne Marie had been a principal of Fonthill from 1932-50, dean of the College of St. Teresa, a member of the faculty, 1931-54, president of Fonthill from 1954 until her death. An administrator and president she inaugurated many changes in the offices and took particular interest in furthering new developments.

Sister Marguerite came to Fonthill as an instructor in sociology in 1932; she left the College of St. Teresa in 1941, when she returned in 1946. She holds a bachelor of arts degree from Loyola and a master of science from St. Louis University.

Radio, music, and television are "remarkable inventions": there's no doubt about it. But the Holy Father, Pope Pius XII, reminds us in his latest encyclical, "Mirabilis Pastoralis", that these remarkable inventions are not products of man's own genius: they are gifts from God. Since these gifts of God should be used in man's quest for truth, and since they can lead to short-sight of their goal, the Holy Father exhorts all Catholics to investigate these new media and to help develop them to the fullest.

Four Parts

The encyclical, although 13,000 words long, is written in a manner that can be understood by all. The Holy Father, literally up to his neck, wants all the members of his flock to benefit from the message. The letter is divided into four parts: a section on general information and instruction, and one devoted to radio, motion pictures, and television. In each of the sections the Pope warns the faithful to be on guard against "clouded truths and want of moral value." Now we may think this is just another "minority warning" telling us what is right and what is wrong. But no one remembers that the Pope does not want us any neophytes just for the sake of joy of writing. And that all the faithful, it is difficult to concisely speak of the main points of our media of entertainment.

Obligation

The faithful themselves, the Pontiff writes, should "fulfill with grace the obligations of maintaining ourselves with the aid of ecclesiastical authority on matters connected with these three media." We have the obligation. Now it's up to us to act.

Freshmen Learn Main Points About National Federation

The freshmen at Fountainstone are unfamiliar with many organizations that exist at school, yet one which really has them stymied is the National Federation of Catholic College Students and National Federation of Catholic Student Teachers. We interviewed a few of these freshmen, and here are some of their questions about N.F.C.C.S.T.

Los Angeles, Calif. (AP) -- N.F.C.C.S.T. is to be a service organization to student government and faculty. Another function of N.F.C.C.S.T. is to be the representative voice of the Catholic college student.

Schools

Terry Klein, St. Teresa's Academy, Kansas City, Missouri.

"How many schools are members?"

Out of 5,000 Catholic colleges and universities in the United States, 100 are members. For reasons of convenience, the national organization is divided into regions. The St. Louis region, the Central region, has 10 colleges as members.

"What are the regional conventions?"

These conventions take place once a year. Mutual problems and projects are discussed at these conventions.

Members

Jean Carroll, St. Joseph's Academy, Fountainstone, Missouri.

"Who belongs to N.F.C.C.S.T.?"

Each student of the student body of the school belongs to N.F.C.C.S.T.

"What are the delegates selected for?"

On the basis of questionnaires filled out by freshmen, the N.F.C.C.C.S.T. nominates student representatives to the national convention which is held in St. Louis in June. The names of the freshmen are then presented to the student body and the winner becomes Junior Delegate, automatically succeeding to Senior Delegate. The Senior and Junior Delegates then represent the school to the National Federation of Catholic College Students and National Federation of Catholic Student Teachers.

On Ecyclical

On Lourdes

Rome (AP) -- Pope Pius XII has condemned all that are held to be "Christian realism" and has called those persons "killing the body" by an exaggerated moral concept. The Holy Father in an ecyclical letter, addressed to the bishops of France, which will take the form of a letter to the bishops in France, contains the following paragraphs: "The Pope decries all the phenomena that are considered to be "realism" and regards them as a grave loss to society, as a profound moral injury."

The Idea took shape and grew into a course that will be given from 7:30 to 8:00 every Monday night in Room 304, science hall.
