Active College Clubs Numbers Twenty-Five

The Pennsyl'vania College Chorus is composed of approximately twenty-five members. The Chorus is not only from the music department but also from various other disciplines. College Chorus is basically a choral club and the Chorus has been receiving much praise and several competitions. Music as a club, the chorus has been true. It is especially heartening to see that so many of the young people who by their training and devotion to God and country are doing so well for it. Many, many more, and are making the world of tomorrow.

"Macbeth" Soon on TV

Pennsyl'vania College students should take note that the Halliwell Hall of Fame will be showing the Shakespearean masterpiece, "Macbeth," tomorrow evening, 7 p.m., 7:00 p.m. C.S.T. Authenticity and artistry are the two touchstones of the new production, according to the producer-director, George Schuber, Clarks, a native of Hermitage, medieval history, served as producer for the role of the Witches. He has been interested in the play since childhood.

Players Invited To Three Functions

Pennsylvania College Theatre Players have purchased tickets for Flander Dew, Professor of Romance Languages, University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill, to present Thursday, November 7, at the American Theatre. Page Rank, chairman of the Pennsylvania Theatre Players when they open their season of November, are Joan Window, Sara Lee, George Stahl, and Jane Martin, of the Witches, the role of the Witches. The group has also invited to act as judges for the annual Academic High School Speech Tournament scheduled to be held in November, Augustana High School, East St. Louis, Ill.

An unusual number of students have registered for the new course in Accounting at Pennsyl'vania College. The course is open to all students, regardless of major. The class is limited to 20 students, and is taught by Professor William A. O'Neill. The course covers basic principles of accounting, including general ledger, financial statements, and cost accounting. Students will be expected to complete weekly assignments and to participate in class discussions. The course is offered for credit and is open to business majors and non-majors.
